

Wayshowers Philosophysm

July 2008

RECTITUDE

by Francisco D. Coll

I am one. I am the One. I am one with all and with my desire. That is my true loyalty. This is not about selfishness ... this is about self-fullness. How am I to ever share Service if I do not respect myself? How am I ever to build love if I do not work with true concern. I do respect myself, and I do share true concern. I know this because I love my purpose and all the opportunities that I encounter. They are a straight line to me.

I practice one thing, and I practice all things...just one-at-a-time. This is simple because when I say I practice all things, I mean I practice everything that is within the path of my direction. There is no distraction because I am one with my Thrust and Desire. I am one with my needs and wants.

And so I embrace life wholly, sincerely and completely. There is nothing to waste because I am involved in my life and my purpose. I am involved in my service and learning & growing on this planet. The only distraction is the one that I create – in which case, it is at least MY distraction and I will enjoy learning and returning to my direction. Because that's all there is. Because that ... is ... all ... there ... is.

There is no judgment in me because there is no hypocrisy in me. When I “judge” I know I am no longer one with all. I have turned my attention to what are supposedly “goods and bads.” And if I become more interested in the “goods and bads” rather than my mission, then I will become governed by that attitude. Spiritually there is no right or wrong, there is only experience. Being strong in rights and wrongs, likes and dislikes, clouds my path. I will start living by what I “think” rather than by what I feel and think. The solution is Service! Service. And when I am loyal to my service, then I am Of-Super-Service.

Service is part of why I am here. To be Of-Service is to be abundant. To be Of-Service, and Learn & Grow, is to be Affluent. There are few energies greater than love and service. And I love my service.

It is easy to feel when I am on target and when I am not. When I experience the “isms” I am off track. When I am experiencing the oneness with all and with what I am involved in, I am on track.

Rectitude is honest, straight, balanced direction. Rectitude is fairness, harmony, freedom and true concern in my Service. Rectitude is LIVING the dreams I adore. Rectitude is when the inner voice is clearer and more predominate than the outer voices and chatter. It is not what I say but how I say it; it is not what I do but how I do it. It is a way of life. It is my way of life . . . to build straight toward my mission.